Joseph Sheaffer – Young Leader

My favorite JV kid is Joseph Sheaffer, who has emerged as a young leader of his sophomore class at Greenwood Junior-Senior High School, Millerstown. He has served as class president for the past two years and this year was elected president of the Student Council. Joseph was chosen to participate in the Wildlife

Leadership Academy, sponsored by the PA Institute for Conservation Education, and shared his research with various community groups. Most recently, Joseph has been selected as the Hugh O'Brien Youth Leadership recipient for his school. In addition, Joe plays football and basketball and in his spare time enjoys reading.

Jesse Sheaffer – Young Poet

My favorite JV kid is Jesse Sheaffer, a 7th grade student at Greenwood Junior-Senior High School, Millerstown. She is a published poet. This talented young writer's poems have appeared in "The Magic Dragon" and "The Louisville Review." Jesse enjoys sports, reading, and is the manager of the Greenwood girls basketball team.

If You Sit On the Porch During a Thunderstorm

By Jesse Sheaffer, 11

If you sit on the porch
During
A thunderstorm
Hear the rain beating
Like a drum
Feel the slight breeze companioned
By the joyful water sprites
Taste the
Tears
Smell the replenished Earth around
You
Remember everything cries
Even Earth.

— Submitted by Molly Kinney, who is the proud aunt of Joseph, Jesse and the cousin of Daniel

Daniel Freed – Young Philanthropist

My favorite JV kid is 7-year-old Daniel Freed, who raised more than $2,000 for the Children's Miracle Network with his lemonade stand. Daniel, a first grader at Tuscarora Valley Elementary School, started his stand two years ago as part of Port Royal's Fourth of July festivities. With help from his parents, Jeremy and Becky Freed, and grandparents, Gerry and Betsy Book, and John and Sue Freed, Daniel is proud to help this worthwhile organization. Because of his hard work, Daniel was selected to be the grand marshal in the town's Old Home Foliage Days.
